ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method of creating computer program specifications includes creatingthe structure information that indicates a relation between program call structure and data input-output information of the

5 computer program source code by analyzing a computer program source code.   The method also includes creating process-outline information of the computer program source code from a part of the structure information, after the creating of the structure information. The method further includes creating computer program specifications

10 of the computer program source code by using the process-outline information, after the creating of the process-outline information.